

FOR THE HAPPINESS OF THE TREES

© Patrick Bard

In France, forestry is one of the sectors with a highest commercial deficit. The Country exports logs and imports wood in the form of more processed products, which makes French economy to be extractionist, one of those that industrially exploit the nature. This is not the case of Bois Landry estate. For those who manage this vast private forest in Eure-et-Loir, sustainable development, valorization, and diversification of the activities are their major commitments: carpentry workshop, scientific research, sojourn in shelters, forest honey production, etc. And tomorrow, therapeutic paths, forest plant production,... Their aim: handing this massif in excellent condition to the future generations while producing employment.

Patrick Bard